DESCRIPTION OF THE BOOK NEWS EVOLUTION OR REVOLUTION? : THE FUTURE OF PRINT JOURNALISM IN THE DIGITAL AGE

This book tells the story of modern-day newspapers by exploring the digital transition of the New Orleans Times-Picayune as a microcosm of the industry. Drawing on the expertise of scholars and professionals across a range of areas, it explores the economic, political, and social context of the move of the largest daily newspaper (to date) from print to the Web. In doing so it paints a complete picture of the current shape of the newspaper industry. While the circumstances in New Orleans anchor the book, it also includes exploration of other for-profit and nonprofit business models for newspapers; differences in how communities handle news during a crisis; implications of the digital divide; and, how different communities believe a decline in print journalism impacts politics and the functioning of local government. By researching in real-time the metamorphosis of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, the book shows what news organizations, journalists, news consumers, and professionals can learn about the future of the global newspaper industry. Is the newspaper industry in the midst of evolution or are its decisions sparking a revolution?

News Evolution or Revolution?: The Future of Print Journalism in the Digital Age by Andrea Miller at Abbey's Bookshop | 9781433123153 | Paperback News organizations have repeatedly dictated that the future of journalism is bleak. They attribute this to the continual dumbing down stories in order to interest a population with an ever-shrinking attention span. There is good news for print journalism in particular, because the study says that in the five years from 2015 and 2020, the print industry will grow at a CAGR of 7.8%, while its advertising revenue will see an even better CAGR of 8.6%. Her second book will be out in August, just in time for AEJMC: News evolution or revolution: The future of print journalism in the digital age. Miller edited the book with Amy Reynolds. Miller edited the book with Amy Reynolds. Pew Research reports that newspaper digital readership increased more than twice as fast as the overall internet audience in the age groups of 18-24, 25-34 and 35-44. The new digital era is causing a steady decline in printed formats, molding a new type of journalist, and creating a mobile future for gathering news. The Decline of Printed News Our younger generations are the main contributors to the decline of printed newspapers. a journalism trend that began in the late 1800s stressing profit and featuring human-interest stories, crime news, and large headlines. The modern legacy of the style of journalism practiced by Joseph Pulitzer and William Randolph Hearst includes
