DESCRIPTION OF THE BOOK SOCIAL WORK RECLAIMED : INNOVATIVE FRAMEWORKS FOR CHILD AND FAMILY SOCIAL WORK PRACTICE

Reclaiming Social Work (RSW) is a radical new system for delivering child and family social work in the UK. The system was first piloted in the London Borough of Hackney and the model has gained national recognition. At the heart of this innovative system is the endeavour to keep children together with their families. This book sets out what the Reclaiming Social Work model is, how it was implemented, and how it works. It explains the RSW system of social work 'units' made up of clinicians and therapists and headed by a consultant social worker, and demonstrates how it has worked in practice. The evidence base and theories underlying the model are also explained. Several chapters are written by consultant social workers with extensive experience of working within RSW, which outline the methodological approaches used. This book on a pioneering new social work model will be of great interest to social work managers, policymakers and academics.

As a social work practitioner with nearly two years' experience of being a consultant social worker in the unit model, I still find Trowler and Goodman's account of the creation and implementation of the new model inspirational. I first read the book when it was published in early 2012 and have re. The title of the book 'Social work Reclaimed' does exactly what it says taking the reader through a step by step journey that 'reclaims' 'social work values and translates these into 'effective evidence based practice' (p. 160).
